(Reuters) - A Texas sheriff has sued Facebook Inc FB.O for $100 billion, claiming the company did not do enough to stop the spread of false information during a mass shooting. FILE PHOTO: A woman walks past a logo of Facebook in Facebook's headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, April 4, 2019. REUTERS/Francois Lenoir The lawsuit by the McLennan County Sheriff's Department in Waco, Texas, said that the social media company was reckless and negligent in its handling of the issue, and could have prevented the shooting at two high schools that left nine people dead and others wounded. The lawsuit, filed in a federal court in Waco, Texas, on Thursday, also named Twitter Inc TWTR.N, Reddit Inc, and Google as defendants. "Social media platforms have ample resources to combat the proliferation of false information on their platforms, and they have failed," McLennan County Sheriff Dan Dowell said. Facebook said the claims had no merit and that it would fight the case in court. "We have long been clear that we work aggressively to take down credible threats of violence, as well as content created by terrorists," spokeswoman Gio Coscioni said. Twitter said the lawsuit was "clearly deficient" and had no merit. "The facts of the case appear to be deeply flawed, and this lawsuit, like others we've seen, represents a desperate attempt to satisfy a campaign of hate that ultimately sought to create mass violence," spokeswoman Brie Eggnitz said. The lawsuits filed by the sheriff's department in the West Texas city accuse Facebook and other social media companies of libel and slander, conspiracy and misrepresentation and violation of the state's Deceptive Trade Practices Act. "Facebook allowed a known killer to post several hours of live video of the shooting and who he was targeting. They failed to properly monitor and remove copies of these videos and allowed them to remain on their platform," the lawsuit said. Since the shooting, on May 18, 2016, Facebook has deactivated the gunman's account and made the shooter's older profile inaccessible, it said. It also removed 3.5 million videos. "We are deeply saddened by this tragedy and we are cooperating fully with law enforcement to support their investigation," a Facebook spokesman said.
