Artists and designers may use Photoshop to create stunning art, make designs more effective, and retouch images. Other people, such as graphic designers and web designers, use the software for various purposes as well. Photoshop provides a full suite of tools for editing and manipulating images, which lets you add text, resize and re-position the elements on an image, change the brightness and color, apply effects, and more. One of the most common uses of Photoshop is for retouching. Retouching is any type of alteration to an image that wasn't part of the original photo. Photoshop lets you practice different techniques using tools that automate much of the work in a smart and easy way. Read Also: Adobe Photoshop Features

Adobe Photoshop comes with a variety of features that make it a useful program for creating a wide range of image projects. A powerful selection tool allows you to select, edit, and reorganize any part of an image. There are tools to make selections as precise as needed, such as the Magic Wand tool, which makes the entire image active, or the Selection Brush tool, which makes selections by drawing a brush around areas with similar color. A tool that allows you to edit layers, including adjusting their opacity, blending, color, and even text, is the Layers panel. This panel gives you access to all the features and tools that make up a layer. You can also change the order and transparency of the layers. Photoshop's revamped Blending Mode lets you apply blending options to any part of an image. You can use Normal, Overlay, Soft Light, Soft Light With Flattening, Lighten, Darken, Color Burn, Color Dodge, Hard Light, Color Dodge With Flattening, Difference, Exclusion, Divide, and the screen's Reverse tools as well. There are adjustments to the light and color tones. The Tone Mapping slider lets you use tools to adjust for lightness or darkness in an image, and the Hue/Saturation panel offers many tools to control the color tones and saturation of an image. The plug-in options are another feature that allows you to add many tools to Photoshop, such as drawing, voice-overs, filters, and raster-based effects.

Choosing a File Type Photoshop saves images using three main file formats – jpg, png, and tif. .. An image in Photoshop is also sometimes referred to as a file. An image file contains information about your image, such as its name, resolution, file format, color mode and any other information about your image. An image file can be a single image or a group of individual images. For example, a single image file is often a jpg or a png. or a or a. A group of individual images is often saved as a single tif file. For example, a group of individual image files might be stored in a directory named "Images", such as "Images\Pets\Cat". After saving a file, you can change the file type of your image file by selecting the file type in the Save As box at the top of the editing window. Photoshop provides a number of file types that are available to you, including:

.jpg and.png : These two formats are the most common file types for web-based images. These two formats are used to save images that are "lossy", meaning the image contains some distortion that can be visible when viewed with a low-quality or blurry image viewer. Lossy formats such as.jpg and.png are preferred for web-based images because they are smaller and faster to save and load than formats that are completely lossless, such as.tiff. and :

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — A Marine who served in Iraq will get credit for two years of time spent in the war zone when he is sentenced Friday for ordering the killing of a teenage Iraqi boy. Prosecutors argue that the 29-year-old native of the state's Newport Peninsula should get credit for the time served. Defense attorney William Hanrahan says his client shouldn't be penalized for what he was ordered to do. A military jury convicted James Hatch of conspiracy to commit premeditated murder last month. Hatch is accused of ordering fellow Marine Christopher Raisor to drive into a group of Iraqi men gathered in a western Iraqi town in May 2006. Raisor then stabbed the 18-year-old from Kirkuk, Iraq, 19 times with a screwdriver. Prosecutors say the attack was ordered because Hatch believed that people of Kirkuk were cooperating with the enemy. Hatch faces a maximum of life in prison when he is sentenced. Enrique Iglesias has taken a fresh shot at the perception that he is a pop star who only writes and performs material written for him. Speaking at the beginning of the 56th Annual Grammy Awards, Iglesias said: "You write that you are going to write a song for somebody, and in my case somebody said, 'Hey, I hear you want to write a song for me.' " "So I think I am not going to lie about that, because it is not good for me to lie," he added to a shrug. He performed "Escape" - which he had recorded in 2002 with Timbaland and Justin Timberlake - as his first song on the show. "By the way I am not a pop star, I'm an artist," Iglesias said. However, the singer appeared in black, white and silver, dressed in a sports jacket and tie, and his singing voice is strongly reminiscent of Michael Jackson's. "You'll see, I'm gonna rock you," he told the crowd. Iglesias has been a favourite at the Grammys since winning five awards in 2008, including a record-equalling five trophies for Best Male Pop Vocal Performance. But early on Sunday morning, he failed to win the prize for record of the year -

Q: Angular UI-Router - Where to put the state code (links that link to other parts of the site) I have been working on the app I am making for a while, and have always put the buttons and pages into the state and then used `$state.go("myState")` to jump from page to page. However I have come to realize that it would be more efficient to have a main state with all the pages in it, and then have those links go into another state, which would lead to the appropriate sub pages. From the end user's perspective they aren't really changing state, rather the state is that they want to see all their data from a particular data type (in this case a customer). They don't necessarily want to see all their customers, they want to see the specific customers they want to see. So I basically want my app to be just that, a web app, that simply stores and displays different types of information, and the user is only ever allowed to navigate between the different states. From looking at the ui-router documentation here, it seems that for each state, it has to have a template and a controller. I feel like I shouldn't need a controller for the state, as the links are all already inside the state. Here is an example of the type of state I need. `$stateProvider.state('state.Customers', { url: '/customers', template: 'customers' + 'Name' + " " + " " + " " }) .state('state.customers', { url: '/customers/customer', template: 'customers' + 'Name`
