The Frontal War... Over their colonies, over their islands, over the seas. During the Second World War, most countries in the world found themselves in one of the two major armed conflicts. And you are here to be a part of it! Hunt down enemy ships, unlock bonus items and earn up to 250 credits a day. Train your ships and unleash the full power of your fleets against your enemies!Q: Partial Animation Markers I would like to know how to mark part of an animation using XML on android. For example, I would like to make it look like the image below With another approach, what I mean is, as the image above, there are markers with the same color as their animation. I thought of making my animation as xml file and load an image to it. However, I don't know how to make it look like the image above. Any ideas? A: I cannot help without seeing the animation. But assuming you are moving the img for the background layer up or down, you can use a layer-list, like this: `c9d1549cdd`

I prefer abstract artwork over photos and I really love this one. It gives me the feeling that I can live there. I like the simplicity of the composition and the hand-drawn pencil marks that create a dynamic rhythm. About the author: Tina Woelz is an artist living and working in Paris. What's new in Slaughter Bots:

"Wandersong" is a song by the British rock group the Kinks, first released as a single in May 1965 on Columbia Records. The song was written by the Kinks' frontman and bandleader, Ray Davies. "Wandersong" consists of two musical sections, which alternate with one another. The first is an acoustic instrumental, which features acoustic guitar, violin and Dave Davies' distorted electric guitar, while the second is an electric guitar-based instrumental, which features Dave Davies' distorted electric guitar, electric guitar and drums. Ray Davies explained that the inspiration for "Wandersong" came from the earlier B-side "Not Anyone's Fault but Mine" (1965), saying that it "[fit] in so naturally - in a great way". Upon release, "Wandersong" received favourable reviews from music critics, with several reviewers noting its lyrical content as humorous. "Wandersong" debuted on the UK Singles Chart at number 21, and was released as the lead single from the Kinks' 1965 album, Muswell Hillbillies. "Wandersong" would become a moderate chart success, becoming one of the band's most popular singles. Music videos were released for the song, with director Lindsay Anderson directing the clip for "Wandersong". "Wandersong" has appeared on most of the Kinks' studio albums and compilation albums since 1965; it has appeared on every consecutive studio album released between 1965 and 2007, except for the albums Everybody's in Show-Biz (1969) and Devils Blues (1982) and Waterloo Sunset (1983). A live version of the song was released on the Live at the LSO album in 2002. Background and recording "Wandersong" was first released as a single on 17 May 1965 on Columbia Records, in the UK and Canada. Music journalist Paul Trynka noted that the song marked a significant departure away from the folk-based musings of the band's previous single releases, "Come Dancing" and "Waterloo Sunset". The song was produced by Ray Davies and engineered by Dave Hutchings. The song is composed in the key of G minor, and features acoustic guitar, violin and Dave Davies' distorted electric guitar. The vocal harmonies in "Wandersong" are provided by Dave Davies and the Kinks' drummer, John Dalton. The instrumental version is 3 minutes, while the electric guitar version is 3 minutes and 37 seconds. Music critic Garry Mulholland described the song as "the
