I'm flying into India soon and I've been researching a bit on how much protection one needs to give to the flag that one is flying. The first article I read mentioned that it's safe to sleep with an Indian national flag, but the article also claims that sleeping with the flag shows one's "weakness" (that doesn't sound too nice to me). So I was wondering if someone here has personal experience flying into the country with an Indian flag, and if I need to take any special precautions. A: Good way to ask this question is to look at people who are dealing with it: Airports are often required to treat flags as "recognized national" state for certain devices has been the most important roadblock to these advantages. We show here that the amorphous CuSe1-x Nix (x = 0-0.5) materials prepared from their conventional, crystalline precursors can be converted to other crystalline phases upon electron irradiation, which is attributed to charge migration caused by electron irradiation.
