"Swingy boy" is the third single from Australian pop-punk band Stereomud's second studio album, Tryptych. It was the fifth song to be released from the album, and was the second single off the final album version before this release of the album. The song was released on Rave Up Records in April 2010. It was released to radio on 23 March, the same week as "Cry Little Sister (So Long, So Long)" and "Chasing Stars". The music video premiered on 24 March, sharing its same filming date as "Chasing Stars". It was filmed in a suburb close to the band's home town, Gosford. The video also stars the lead singer of Mirrors, Maija Henderson. To promote the video, Stereomud held a contest to win a day out with the band, including a meet & greet session where contestants will have the chance to get autographs from the band. It was won by Hayley Jay who was later also awarded a free session with the band. "Swingy boy" was recorded by two producers who worked with the band on Tryptych. Firstly, the band recorded the song's demo with producer Phil McKellar, who had worked with the band on The Diamonds / The Boys' Tales EP, as well as every Stereomud single up until that point. McKellar then worked alone with the band on the demo, which was rerecorded by the band with producer Adrian Bushby, who has also worked with Sum 41, Madcon and Silverchair. The song was a moderate success, peaking at number three on the Australian ARIA Singles Chart, as well as earning its position at number eight on the Triple J Hottest 100, 2010. Background The song was written and recorded by the band in contrast to the rest of their sophomore album, Tryptych. It was the first song recorded for the album, and was the first time they had produced a song on their own. "It's a song about you", Smith said of the song during an interview with Triple J radio. "A song for a man who won't give up and doesn't quite know why he's still fighting for something he doesn't really want, but he can't seem to stop." During an interview with the Australian website, Tunes.com.au, they stated that it was the worst song they'd ever recorded, with the band believing it
