Players are able to change their playing style and characteristics at any time, meaning that they can become more technical, more calm, or more aggressive. FIFA 22 introduces all-new "Breaking Patterns" gameplay. Playing styles in the previous games have become predictable, with players trying to complete long passes from deep, and full backs always trying to run in behind the defence. Now, players must adapt to the new rules of the game and find a new style of play. Each season of FIFA in the past 20 years has introduced a new challenge for players, building on the success of the previous game. FIFA 22 introduces a new "Trial Mode." The Trial Mode offers 3v3 matches, while the full game will use up to 32 players from all eligible countries. The Trial Mode will be available in both PES and FIFA modes. Here are some screenshots of the new features of FIFA 22. FIFA 22 for PlayStation 4 will be available on 10th August. A demo will be available from 9th August at participating retailers.
