The player is a hacker who has broken into the mainframe of an Interpol sponsored company that is working with organized crime. There is a lot of money involved and those that get in the way are eliminated. In this game you hack, shoot, kill and get to the bottom of things. The game is intended to be played in quick scenarios to eliminate the right people quickly, achieving perfection is not the goal of the game. We are releasing more maps for this game and are working on several more features and are also working on having an online tournament system. The server will be hosted by Foxydesign.website Schedule6/9/11 A Very Special thanks to our hosting team at Foxydesign.website. Their service and patience was second to none and it is showing on the performance of the server and the looks of the website. We have an official launch date of June 9, but don't wait around because it won't be long at all. We will be releasing a new version of the game with balance changes for the current 1.0. This means that the servers will be heavily used at first, but that's normal for any first game. For the servers to be stable in the long run we need to keep the server up and running, so that's our goal. If you can't wait till June 9, or if you just want to have a free beta before the official release, you can download the game now for free! Big Update coming this week. Just a day after launch I have a major update for you all. First of all all of the maps are coming in now with more slated for the next update. In addition to that a couple of balance changes have been made which should bring the game in line with how it was meant to be played. Overall the balance of the game will have some changes made to it. I have decided to make the maps a bit smaller and add some new game modes. We are hoping to add some 3v3 and 5v5 support in the next round of updates. Hope you enjoy! Forums Discussion about here Our first big post after launch is finally here! The servers are all up and running for our first patch! In addition to balancing, we have made some changes to the maps. They should all be playable and enjoyable for a lot of players. "There is a wide variety of approaches for players to use. The goal is very simple: score the largest amount of points possible in the time given to you. By dodging plasma projectiles you gain points and combos to earn action points. These can be used for the following perks: teleporting, attack, multi-attack, slowing down time. By killing your foes you gain additional time, which enables you to score more points. Enemies can be killed by your projectiles or can get run over by a ship that you can control at any time, even when you're not on it. They can also get knocked out and drown when hit by a larger wave. When you get hit, you don't gain a point and your combo progress decreases. This makes it harder to gain action points that enable the use of player's abilities - which in return enable player to gain more points. The game has a unique positioning in the genre, in that dodging is not the primary goal in order to score points, rather it is used to extend combos in the moment. It is a finesse-based combat where you must anticipate your foes movement. Dodge projectiles in the right direction or time the attack to an opponent that has slowed down, knock him out or trigger a kill combo. The dodge mechanic is not there to prevent you from scoring points, rather, it is there to extend combos, slow down time and take down your enemies. It is a lot of fun, and with every rank you can unlock new combo abilities, like multi-dodging, which opens up even more possibilities."

4.5/5 - Joystiq "Torchlight 2 isn't just another by-the-numbers, fetch-this-item-and-kill-that-thing game. It's a genre-hopping, steampunky action-RPG epic with far-out characters, wild battles and a world to explore." 4.5/5 - GameSpot "When combined with the massive satisfaction of climbing up the leaderboards, the easy navigation and complex controls give the game a real sense of experimentation, as if this were the first time you've picked up an action RPG." 9/10 - Destructoid "Torchlight II is an action RPG that picks up where its predecessor left off, with a huge, hostile, steampunk world to explore and a total of 8 worlds to visit. It also makes a huge step forward in adding RPG elements to the genre, with a huge number of stats, classes and options to

What's new:

(TDDR) are in the studio and have nothing to release until 2014, which is 20 years after their debut album 'Open And Shut' came out. But with their much anticipated second studio album due next year, the release of their debut single 'Afterlife' was inevitable. After the ever feisty and fearless Wendy Foster sat us down at Artsfest London in Denmark Hill to chat with us about the follow up to their critically acclaimed and platinum selling debut effort. It's probably fair to say that the chances of something bad happening to a band, after hitting the headlines so many times as TDDR, must be pretty slim. How do you look back at your past? Does it matter? We don't really look back at what we've done. We never plan too far ahead. We always try and stay in the present, we don't really think about what we might be doing in 5, 10 or 15 years. With one album release, there's only so many things that can happen. So that's the way we look at it. What's the worst / most embarrassing moment you can remember from your past? The most embarrassing thing - for which we've also talked about the oddest thing... - is the one time when we were onstage at the Belgian Pinkpop festival. We were in the main stage and we finished our set and went off stage and stood with the backstage audience and waited for the main stage to be done with the after show parties. And you saw that they were just a bunch of dudes taking a piss out of the stage, taking pictures and doing whatever. We thought oh shit, this is not good. So we had this manager who was there working, and he was like, "Hey guys, wait, wait, don't go anywhere, it's going to be a bit of fun, there's a group of dudes going to have a piss in the DJ booth. Wait until they've done it, come back and we'll party." Three guys went in the DJ booth and people went back outside. We had a cool hip-hop night. One DJ played Nirvana, 'Smells Like Teen Spirit', which was terrible and he tried to turn it off but couldn't. He kept on trying to play it. We stood there and you couldn'
