Photoshop has a GUI (user interface) that enables users to easily navigate through and create their images. The interface allows for much more control than traditional programs. The basic layout of the program looks something like this, although a lot of icons on the screen will be different depending on your operating system, which we'll explain below: Every image in Photoshop has layers. Layers are Photoshop's object-level technology. They're the basics of what editing in Photoshop is all about. Layers are similar to sheets of paper and can be used just like normal pieces of paper. Layers have color, brightness, and transparency, and, depending on the layer, can also be modified with filters and texture. You can make changes to one layer and have it modify another. In short, layers are flexible and can be reshaped and manipulated with ease. Learn more about layers in Chapter 3. The Layers panel provides an easy-to-use view of all the layers in your image. The Layers panel is in the upper-right corner of the window that enables you to see and edit all the layers in your image. The Layers panel can display all the layers in your image (including the Background layer) as well as check the Layers panel for only the layers in your image's active layer group. When you switch to the Layers panel, you'll see the layers in the bottom of the Layers panel. The Layers panel's top half is the "show" side; that is, it's the set of layers in the active layer group. The Layers panel's bottom half is the "hide" side, meaning that all of the other layers are hidden. When you hide the Layers panel, it won't appear unless

Q: How to bind to a windows 10 appstore app with javascript? I have an app which is being included into the windows store. However, when I try to bind to it (webview / javascript) with a webview, it doesn't work. I've tried to register via a redirect (both redirect_uri and prompt_redirect_url were set to the same value), but it doesn't seem to work. Is it possible to attach a javascript application to a windows appstore app? Is there a WebView / JavaScript example? A: I've tried to register via a redirect (both redirect_uri and prompt_redirect_url were set to the same value), but it doesn't seem to work. This is expected and per the docs here: For the browser-based approach, specify the user agent string in the onNavigatedTo handler of the WebView, i.e. in your app's JavaScript. Example: (function () { "use strict"; //... win.WebView = win.WebView || win.WebViewJs; win.WebViewJs.prototype.onNavigatedTo = function (callback) { if (this.navigationHasCompleted) { callback(null, { ua: 'Mozilla/5.0 (Windows NT 6.3; Win64; x64) AppleWebKit/537.36 (KHTML, like Gecko) Chrome/48.0.2564.116 Safari/537.36', version: navigator.userAgent.slice(0, 3), 'platform': 'windows', browser: 'Windows 10', 'plugins': [

Synthesis and biological evaluation of 2-aminoquinazoline derivatives as new broad spectrum anticancer agents. Various 3-aminoquinazoline derivatives were synthesized and evaluated for their in vitro anticancer activity against NCI-60 cell lines. The majority of the prepared compounds exhibited broad spectrum antitumor activity against most cancer cell lines, in particular, the representative compounds 5e and 5h were the most active with the mean of growth inhibition at IC50 of 0.43 and 0.22 $\mu M$, respectively. The good anticancer activity of these compounds prompted us to further study the structure-activity relationship of them. The N1-aminomethyl group at C3 (compounds 8i and 8j), the N3-substituted aryl or heteroaryl group (compounds 9a-9j) and the 4-(2- or 4-methoxyphenyl) group at C4 (compounds 7i-7l) were found to be important for their potent anticancer activity, and the substituent at C2 had no significant effect.Q: How to check which state transaction updates user information in firebase cloud function? I have a Firebase Cloud Function that is updating user information when the user clicks on a link. The problem is that sometimes the user information is updated for a user that didnt click on the link, but the function updates the user information in the database of other users, making it look like the user clicked on the link. What I want to know is how to check which state transaction updates user information? There is a function that uses an onAuthStateChanged handler to check if the user has a successful login status. This function is called whenever a user logs in using the Google login button. However I have two different calls to the function in my cloud function: exports.updateUser = functions.auth.user().onAuthStateChanged( (user) => { console.log('new user authenticated with uid:', user.uid) // do stuff } ) And this other call: const updateUser = functions.auth.user().onCreate((user) => { console.log('user was created:', user) // do stuff }); Update: I've created a JSFiddle
