missing something in those last two pieces of code? (Sorry if this is lengthy :) ) TIA! A: You've written a lot of code, but not all of it. It's good to note that you're using global variables (i.e., variables that are visible everywhere in your code), not local variables (i.e., variables that are visible only in certain functions in your code). I use that convention myself when coding in C. In C++, it's a good idea to avoid global variables whenever possible. As you're learning C++, it's a good idea to learn it trade to pay-off balances on ships and to provide interim finance for new vessels. Heritage Line Sailing Days, held since 1975, is a prestigious event designed to show off the skill of many small craft owners with large old-fashioned wooden boats. Wooden-boat enthusiasts from all over the world come to the fair, held every year at the beginning of May in the town of Leer in the Dutch province of North Holland, to see and admire the decorated boats that have been lovingly restored and beautified. The boats that are most popular here are the various categories of schooners, brigs and buggies, which draw many visitors to the marina. Over the course of the two days of the event

What's new in Fantastic Troop:

I'd like to welcome you to the first of many Cooking Companions series that we'll be publishing on Rant. I'm sure you all will enjoy getting to know a woman who is right at home in the kitchen and the writer-host of "Cooking Companions". She has been married to her Korean husband (not in that order!) for more than four decades. Her food tastes are home cooked - good and bad. She's had 2.5 kids and 6 grandchildren. She likes to go "country-hopping" and has been to Australia, Norway, Jamaica, and Israel. We were good friends at one time in California during her early "Me time". I was a young widow going through the grieving period and she was a young widow looking for a new beginning. We'd meet up for coffee and spend time together. Our friendship turned into a business relationship when my husband (the only one who would have reacted to being referred to as the one and only), departed to God's unknown destination. Her introduction to the world of cooking came in the form of my skinny cookbook, "The Great Gardener Cookbook" (Picazoo Publishing Ltd. 1982) This book is a fun book based on gardening. She bought copies for everyone on her block and her kids came over to fill up their milk boxes. The editors of Cook's Country magazine in the US picked up her collection of recipes and selected them for inclusion in the magazine. Now a teacher and chef-in-residence at the chic Camp Hill Lodge in the Pine Barrens of New Jersey, Mareyela often makes her recipes available to the school children and their families, as well as to those guests who have special dietary needs. Mareyela with her friend, Ania Nimmo. L-R: Ania, Mareyela, and Marina. Before we get into the nuts and bolts of her recipes, I'd like to state that Mareyela is a multiple 2008 Kwan Imprensa American Cancer Society-Housemother of the Year Award winner, recipient of the 2008 ASEAN Pacific Women of Courage Award and the 2008 Chiefs of Cancer Are Honorary Committee For the Year Award, Winner of The Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award for Long-Term Service," and if you can find it in the store

In January 2018, Jody (Sarena) was diagnosed with a rare form of bone cancer. She was given a palliative bone marrow transplant, and in May 2018, Jody's condition turned for the worse. She was placed on a ventilator and received intensive chemotherapy. On August 8, 2018, after being in and out of the hospital for six months, Jody passed away. In the months since, she has been surrounded by thousands of messages of love and support. On August 15, 2018, Jody's family asked that we feature a video of her daughter, Sarena, reacting to her mother's death. In that video, Sarena tells us, "I still miss my mom." When we heard these words, we knew we had to honor Jody's incredible journey with a game. To honor a mother who never met her daughters, a daughter who could not love the mother who cared for her, and to honor the memories of one small girl and her very big family. Almost 4 years after the bone marrow transplant (since the most recent surgery was May 2018), and 4 years since a very sick little girl made her mother's death real and her family's journey real, on July 20, 2020, in the year of Jody's 41st birthday, the most improbable coincidence of all: the California Supreme Court ruled that AB258, which had been in limbo since 2015, allowing the state to implement a smoking ban in hospitals, is now the law of the land. A few days ago, the Supreme Court ordered the judge who has been blocking the ban to decide on the matter of standing or the final execution of AB258, giving the order on June 2, 2020. So, on August 20, 2020, at the age of 41 and almost 4 years after the transplant, Jody had her last surgery. You will never know the true power of love until it is tested in ways you never thought possible. Thousands of people are making this happen and dream of the day this lives, actually happens. Our dream is to put out this dream in the form of a game. A game that would let a mother remember her mother - a daughter remember her mother. A game that lets you speak out against the small injustices that are always present. And a game that lets you tell the story of a daughter and a mother's shared life
