microsoft windows update (it is currently unavailable). on or before February 10, 2017, and is. FREENODE Â». being a bunch of boneheads playing Shadowy X. I don't want to be the guy who missed the boat on it, but I don't want to be the guy who made it look like it was a poor choice. Personally, I think it would be a great idea to have the shadow types of Alignment (in addition to what we already have) be something that you have to set before playing. In my mind, being a Shadow type means you have turned your back to the light of the human realm (the good side) and those who want to do what is right, but might not always be considered "good" (the bad side). A Shadow character would be the exact opposite of a Lawful character, because you turn your back to the Lawful character's light (the good side), and go into the dark shadow world (the bad side). In my mind, you have literally turned your back on the Lawful light, and are following your own light (the Shadow side). It would be like having the other alignment styles. If you had a Lawful character, he would be lawful in both reality and shadow (with you) but in shadow, he would act as a Shadow character. You could have a Neutral character, who could be "neutral" in both worlds, but act as a Neutral character in shadow, but a lawful character in reality. I also think that you could base another Alignment style on a Shadow character. A Shadow character has not only given his back to the Lawful light, but is also in the dark shadow world. Therefore, he could have the "Dark" style, because there are Shadow creatures such as Drow and Necromancers and Undead. I think a Dark character could use his Shadow powers to do different things (be they good or bad) because they are there, in your shadow, but out of his sight. If your Shadow character is Lawful, and a Neutral character is behind you or a Shadow character, you could have the Shadowy style. This means that your Shadow characters can take on the appearance of Lawful characters, but are not really Lawful characters and can use their Shadow powers (whether good or bad) because they are in your shadow, and can see you. If your Shadow character is Good, you could have the Shadow
