Keypad macros for AutoCAD use AUTOCADML. Data streams are used to send data to the drawing. In many AutoCAD products a data stream or SDLink data format is available. So we had this "silent drop" where we would assemble in a big group and, if you weren't going to be in class that day, you could sit back and be one of the guys. I recall a really stupid practice for the drop. The group assembled on a bench in the Fraternity room, but all of the women in the group were discussing something with a group of men. After about five minutes, I decided that I didn't feel like being one of the guys anymore, and I walked away from the group. To this day I don't know if the women were talking about the weather or the menu at Olive Garden, but I was pretty sure they were talking about some guy named Brett.
