Driving (not) the path of innovation - jacobian ====== stcredzero The trend is for a gradual shift from a focus on product innovation to agglomeration-based innovation. This can be seen with the rise of corporations like Google. This trend is usually obscured by the term "product innovation." ------ StrawberryFrog I agree that that this is the direction the world is moving in, and I also agree that the trend is going to work out way better for businesses (in that they will get much more from their employees), but I think that the current approach is not a good choice for activists and the activist movement in general. I think that information doesn't spread as it should, and that the next steps in the move toward this reality will be taken by people who may not be aware
