The new study published on Feb. 3 showed that Argentina's budget deficit was larger than expected in 2016 and about double than forecast in 2018. There is thus a growing risk that Argentina will begin implementing cuts in spending and an eventual increase in taxes. The new study, written by economists at the Bank of England in London and delivered at an event organized by Natixis Asset Management, was compiled after Argentina's sovereign bond swap of the debt restructured in 2013.
